

I am Xavi Marzo with NIA 240134

In the project, I played the role in conducting a comprehensive comparison between Decentraland and its competitors, namely Sandbox, Somnium Space, and Cryptovoxels. This involved conducting an in-depth analysis of their strengths and weaknesses across various crucial aspects, including the chain validation technique employed, the type of their wallets that they use, the level of control over user behavior and the policies in place, the profile of their investors, and the evolution of their respective currencies.

To ensure a thorough evaluation, I dedicated significant time to researching and gathering relevant information about the beginnings and early stages of these platforms.

Furthermore, I made substantial contributions to the project, accounting for approximately 20.0% of the overall effort. While attempting to build a scene and involving transactions, I faced challenges and was unable to achieve success in that particular aspect involving transactions. However, throughout the process, I made sure to provide proper references and contribute independently to other aspects of the project.
